By leveraging the capacity of our institutional data systems and research team, our goal is to use data to identify students at various stages of the pipeline, assess equity gaps and develop targeted interventions. This presentation will also describe how Fullerton College developed a 5-part application workshop series to assist students in the year-long application process. Topics covered in each of the workshops will be shared as well as some data/results of students attending the series.

Make Public Transfer Data Sources Work for You and Your College: What changes in transfer outcomes have been occurring at your college? Using resources like the UC Information Center, CSU Analytics, and the Chancellor's Office Data Mart, Los Medanos College's Transfer Services has created usable transfer outcome data reports on subjects like changes in transfer majors, transfer by equity groups, and transfers by institution type over time, for Guided Pathways planning, equity outcomes, new program development, and more. Learn how to create similar documents for your campus with simple Excel tools and formatting.

12:00 – 1:00 Lunch

1:00 – 1:50 Mariana Moreno from Crafton Hills College, Scott Cooper from College of the Desert & Jessica Rodriguez, Mt. San Jacinto College (Campus-Wide Transfer Culture)

Region 9 (Inland Empire) community colleges will share some of their best practices and innovative ideas towards building a campus-wide culture of transfer. Our goal is that you leave the workshop with tools, tips and tricks that you can implement or modify on your campus to immediately help your students transfer through the gate and realize their educational goals. The strategies include topics such as: leveraging the support of instructional faculty and staff to increase transfer awareness, disseminating high quality, ADA-compliant, electronic transfer information via Canvass, effectively utilizing technology to inform the campus transfer culture in a timely manner and, low-cost student activities that engage and celebrate a culture of success. All these best practices are ideal for Transfer Center Directors that struggle with limited staffing and financial resources to meet the large need for transfer services on their campuses. All activities directly support the mission of Guided Pathways.

2:00 – 2:30 Dan Nannini, Santa Monica College (Closing Perspectives)
